Re: The North Carolina State Bar v. Michael B. Nifong
06 DHC 35

Dear Ms. Miani:

Pursuant to F. Lane Williamson's signed order of July 10, 2007, a copy of which I received on July 18, 2007, I am hereby tendering my law license. You will note that it contains a misspelling of my middle name (which I unfortunately did not notice until after my swearing in) and damage subsequently inflicted by a puppy in her chewing stage. Consequently, it has never been framed or displayed.

I am unable to comply with the order that I surrender my membership card, as I have never been sent one. Since I have never encountered a situation in which I needed the card, I have never requested one.

I am also returning, unsigned, the Acceptance of Service for the amended order signed on July 24, 2007, which I received on August 3, 2007. Since the original order was prepared by the attorneys for the State Bar, submitted for review by the parties, and modified after objections were made, ample opportunity was given to include any proposed changes, and the changes incorporated in the amended order were not suggested by anyone. Mr. Williamson's e-mail assertion that the addition of a new conclusion of law based on the request of a Duke University law professor is merely a "clerical correction" is preposterous beyond belief, and is further evidence of the fundamental unfairness with which this entire procedure has been conducted.

Sincerely,

Michael B. Nifong
